we have suffered hitherto; but the extreme step of destroying the whole of an infected

Those who talk about the offence to Chinese

The Board, if it conscientiously works its hardest to combat the greatest curse of Hongkong, absolves itself from blame in the performance of its duty toward the Colony. The present department of the Finance Ministry for Trade and Industry, whose functions are limited, does not do more than meet the increasing demands and the development which commercial and industrial activity has shown in Russia. PRINCE CHUN'S RECEPTION.

THE BOXING TOURNAMENT.

If talent goes for anything, there should be a good attendance at the City Hall to-night to witness the boxing entertainment provided by Messrs. Jack McAuliffe, once the light-weight champion boxer of the world, and Jack Slavin, middle-weight champion of Australia.

Both men are well known in the world sport. Jack McAuliffe began his career as a boxer over twenty years ago, and now line a aplendid record at his back. Perhaps the stiffest fight in which he ever took part was that with "Bill" White, in Perth, Western Australia. In the first round White smashed three of McAuliffe's ribs, but the latter fought gamely, and after nineteen rounds, injured as he was, actually best his antagonist. Besides fighting with four ounce gloves, McAuliffe has also fought with the bare knuckles, and won, too. Jack Slavin is the brother of Frank Slavin, former heavy-weight world's champion. He is 36 years of age, and stands 6ft. Olin. in height. His fighting weight is 11st. 7lbs., and he holds the middle-weight championship of Tasmania, Queensland and Victoria. He has had a varied experience of men and conntries, having with Jack McAuliffe professionally visited many places in England, America, South and East Africa, India, Australasia, and the Straits. His victories in the ring are

The present tour commenced in October, 1898, in Johannesburg, where McAuliffe and Slavin met and agreed to join forces. A year later they separated for a time in East Africa, Blavin taking that and the central part of the Dark Continent, whilst McAnliffe went on to India, Later, in Calcutto, the partnership was renewed. Whilst in India McAaliffe was nightly doing. what has perhaps never before been attempted in the ring-i.e., meeting on an average between four and five men (singly, of course), whom he contracted to knock out, and did knock out, in four rounds each, or twenty rounds in all. In Rangoon the glove-fight between McAuliffe and Slavin was held under the patronage of the Lientenant-Governor and General Protheroe; and at Singapore, on the occasion of their participating in a benefit concert for the Banvard Company, H. E. Sir Frank Swettenham, K.C.M.G., was present with a party from Government House. McAulifie goes to Canton on Monday, but Slavin will remain behind to conduct the athletic class that has been formed since their arrival in this

The programme to-night will in the first part consist of exhibition sparring between McAuliffe and Slavin and soldiers from the Garrison. Slavin will also engage in an exhibition with the Colony's old favoucite, W. S. Bailey, and McAuliffe will be seen alvantage as an are and club-swinger. In the second part D. Allen a d H. Rogers will fight a six round contest for a purse presented by Jack McAuliffe, and the entertainment will conclude with a ten-round exhibition of boring between McAuliffe and Slavin. It will thus be seen that the programme is certainly one not lacking in interest, but if a further indecement to stend be required, it may be stated that Mo-Aulifie has a challenge to make a very pointed challenge too, and one that is said to have the cold did for in special reference to certain sayings and doings that have transpired since his arrival here.

TONKIN NOTES.

PROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

Hansi, 1st September. M. DOUMER'S RETURN.

M. Donmer is probably dissatisfied with his reception at Saigon. It has been given him to compare between the enthusiasm in France at the meetings organised in his honour and the glacial welcome he got from the Saigonese population, interpreter of all French people in Indo-Chine. M. Picanon was followed to the M.M. steamer by all the Saigonese and respectfully saluted at the departure of the boat. Except few officers and officials, there by order, no colonist was present at the return of our Governor-General. His passage into Cotinat Street, at the hour of "aperit fs," when many people were assembled on the terraces, provoked no saluto. An hostile reception even was feared, for numerous policemen were everywhere about the town and seemed to have very strict orders. Indifference is more significant; moreover, a manifestation, though allowed in France, is not tolerated in Indo-China because of the presence of the matives, before whom it is necessary to keep to ourselves sentiments and to appear to respect the first French magistrate of the Colony.

DEATH OF A DISTINGUISHED ANNAMESE. During the last few days there died at Hansi an Annancse mandaria, well known by all the French residents. Ba-ho-kim was a fine old man, of majestic aspect, with a white beard, slways scrupulously dressed. He rendered many services to the French cause, and Paul Bert esteemed him very much. He formerly was a councillor on the Hanoi Municipal Assembly and a member of the Consultative Committee of native nobilities establised by Paul Bert and now suppressed. He attained the fifth rank of civil mandarindom: Proprietor of several liouses in Paul Bert Street, he left a very large fortune to his three sons. His obsequies took place to-day and were very splendidly cele-

AN ABUSE OF AUTHOBITY. A few days ago the Hanoi Chamber of Commerce energetically protested against the injury to trade caused by obstructive action on all the launches running to Laokai for the needs of the military and civil administrations. The Chamber very logically asked for a reserved place on board for goods of local traffic. This wish has not been taken into consideration, and ull with objects destined for the military and civil administrations of the Lackai district, and special missions into Yunnan province. This abuse of authority causes indignation.

MISCELLANEOUS. The Paris Figure has sent to Indo-China to enquire for the notes of Captain Bernard on French colonisation in Cochin-China, Annam and Toukin. The notes collected by the French journalist cannot fail to contain important and interesting revelations. The Indo-Chinese Press generally applands the Peris paper for its intelligent initiative.

Five days ago the body of a native was found in the water at Cus Cam by the Customs tidewaiters. He had a large wound in the groin. and a rope was around his neck. The police are enquiring about this orimo, which has caused no little excitement in the Colony.

M. Martin's murderers are not yet all caught, but M. de Mahé, the Bac-Ninh President and Police Inspector Lambert are expecting to get at them in a very short time.

Dr. Le Lan, a candidate at the Délégation questions interesting to the Colony. Dr. Le-Lan meets with a great dal of success and a cordial welcome.

BRITISH ARMY REQUIREMENTS

Among the Parliamentary papers issued on the 22nd July was the undermentioned paper by the Secretary of State, laying down the requirements for our army, and dated 1st June. 1901 :- His Majesty's Government have care. fully considered the question of the general objects for which our army it maintained. It has been considered in connection with the programme of the Admiralty and with the knowledge of the assistance which the navy is capable of rendering in the various contingencies which appear to be reasonably probable, and they decided that the general basis of the requirements from our army may be correctly laid down by stating that the objects of our military organisation are: (a) The effective support of the civil power in all parts of the United Kingdom. (b) To find the number of men for India which has been fixed by arrangement with the Government of India.

(c) To find garrisons for all our fortresses and coaling stations at home and abroad accoring to a scale now laid down, and to maintain these garrisons at all times at the strength fixed for a peace or war footing. (d) After providing for these requirements to be able to mobilise rapidly for home defence, two army corps of regular troops, and one partly composed of regulars and partly of militie, and to organise the auxiliary forces not allotted to army corps or garrisons, for the defence of-London, and for the defensible positions in advance, and for defence of mercantile ports.

(e) Subject to the foregoing considerations and to their financial obligations, to aim at being able, in case of necessity, to send abroad two complete army corps with cavalry division and line of communication. But it will be distinctly understood that the probability of the employ-ment of an army corps in the field in ar y European w is sufficiently improbable to make it the imary duty of the military authorities to organise our forces efficiently for the defence of this country.

CHINESE MUSIC FOR HONGKONG

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."

4th Eoptember. Sin, - Following the example of the Rev. E. J. Hardy, I will preface my complaint with an illustration-"Some time ago the officers of one of our warships entertained a high Chinese official, and thought a selection of music by the ship's amuteur band would be appreciated. Before commencing the programme the band spent some time in tuning and testing their instruments, much to the annoyance of the ship's officers. After the completion of the performance, the guest was asked how he liked Western music, and replied that he was delighted with the first piece. Instructions were given to the bandmaster to repeat it. He did so, but it was not the one specially liked. After repeating the whole programme and not satisfying their guest, the bandmaster (evidently a keen judge of Chinese tastes) thought it must be the discordant sound of tuning, &c, that appealed to the native car. He gave instructions to his men to tune up until they bust-either their wind or the instruments-and the hosts were more suprised than gratified at the appreciation of kong and Whampon Docks have declined sometheir guest, for at last he heard again the music that had touched him."

I am living at the Hongkong Hotel, and in weather like that we have had recently, enjoy nothing better than a quiet evening on the verandah. At present that is impossible, for the evenings are made hideous by shrill incessant music proceeding from a native tea-house somewhere in the neighbourhood of d'Aguilar Street. It is not much to ask that the Europea . centre of the town be kept free from 1. 1 isances of this description, and my only wond . is that complaints have not been made befo. . , or the particular establishment been assuted to "collapse." Steamers are fined for blowing their whistles, and yet our evenings are made hellish (I use the only word that can fully express my feel. ings, for Chinese music could not have had a terrestrial origin) and no objection made by the powers that be. Let the natives have their music and fun by all means, but keep it at a the situation remains the same. A certain respectable distance from the luckless white tradesman three week ago annuanced to some | man whose troubles in this benighted place are customers that there's sending a box, fifty sufficiently hard to bear without being distractpounds in weight. He has come to the wharf ed nightly by such a pandemonium. If the every Saturday morning and has been invariably steam pile-drive and foundry at Wanohai rentold to come again, as the launch is completely | dered an action at law justifiable, there is surely a case here for the Liotel Directors and others residing in the vicinity. In Shanghai (that muchquoted place) coolies are prosecuted for shouting unnecessarily in the streets. We could not expect such radical measures here, but we have taken to ensure peace and quietness. As an outsider, I have no idea how these licences are granted, but the most unimaginative individual should see that the boundary line of natives and foreigner is not a fit place for a native sing-song. As I write, 10.30 p.m., a bell is tolling, but whether a fire-bell or part of the performance I cannot say .- Yours, etc., DISTRACTED.

PARSEES AND CRICKET.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." 6th September.

SIR,-I have read with interest the correspondence which appears in your to-day's issue under the heading "Parsees and Cricket" by a elections, is now in High Tonkin, studying Parsee. Leaving aside the suggestions which your correspondent has made, allow-me to point out a slight mistake which must have crept in through inadvertence. As eyewitness of the matches played between Lord Hawke's Team and the Parsees, the latter were victorious by several wickets in the first match only, while in the return match which was played also at Bombay (and not at Poona, as your correspondent states) the Parsees were beaten by 7 or 8 rans. I cannot here give the exact particulars of the scores made by the respective teams, as the matches referred to were played soms years ago, but I can state with ample certainty that the Parsees won the first and lost the return match. As a matter of fact two English representative cricket teams have visited India. The first was brought out by Mr. Vernon a couple of years before Lord Hawke brought out his team, and in the two matches played between Vernon' Team and the Parsees, the latter were in both victorious. I therefore presume that whilst writing your correspondent may probably have had the latter facts in his mind, but instead of using Vernon's name he used that of Lord Hawke -- Yours, etc.,

ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES.

The following report of an interview which a representative of the Associtated Press has had with Lord Pauncefote in London is published in America:-

His Lordship said: "I am having conferences with Lord Lansdowne not only about the Nicaa right to claim that reasonable precautions be ragua Canal question, but also in regard to half a dozen treaties pending between the two counties. These relate chiefly to West Indian reciprocity arrangements.

Asked if be though that there was any possibility of arriving at an agreement on the Nicaragua question previous to the reassembling of Congress, Lord Pauncefote said: "Yes, I sincerely hope so. There is no good in wasting time over treaties which the Senate is | tude which appears nuaccountable. Why is likely to refuse. Really I believe that the differences of opinion between the two nations are capable of settlement in an agreement fair to both. If I could finish my delightful labours in America by accomplishing this and I should, indeed, feel gratified; but the only way in which this can be attained is step by step, proposition followed by counter-proposition, and eventually the happy medium. It is slow but, I hope, sure. If I thought anything could be done before October I would return prior to that date, but I do not believe that it would be possible."

The Ambassador here interjected a warm tribute to the Americans. "They are," he said, "the most genial people on the face of the earth. At the first grip of the hand they take you to their hearts. So long as you do not try to deal underhand with them, so long as you do | will accept. Education for adults, as well as not assume superior airs, they treat you as one of their own, and no one can say more.

Reverting to the report that the majority of the Senate had agreed to a neutral canal, Lord Pauncefote said that it would be good news if true, but he did not express a belief or otherwise regarding its verity. "I happen to know," he said, " that Mr. Hay carefully consulted the Senate, both that section which is suppresed to support him and the section credited with other motives, and you may be sure that whatever is agreed on between the two Governments will meet with the approval of the Senate." When asked if the Joint Commission was likely to sit again in Washingt:n the Ambassador replied: "Yes I think and trust it will, though it will not until after my return to Washington. I do not agree with the opinion that the previous sessions of the commission resulted in no good. The commission threshed out many points of difference between Canada our efforts to conquer the country in its schools, nd the United States, though its inability to and we shall see what has been lost when it is agree to the Alaska Boundar, and the sad, sad- | too late to retrieve it. CONCENTRATION CAMPS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The Times publishes the following statement interested in the night school. I had a class from Mrs. Sarah Hockford, who has just of middle-aged men, and you would be surreturned to England after a residence of many prised how quickly they learn - two men years in the Transvaol. Miss Hobbouse, in the letter to Mr. Brodrick which the Times published a few days ago, asserts that she is well qualified to give an opinion on the state of the concentration camps. Pray allow me the opportunity of asserting publicly that she is not. Her report reveals spending their money and time more profitably this to any one who has lived for many years amongst the Boers, and has, besides, passed through more than one war. I wish to say most emphatically that to any such person that report is rather a vindication than an indictment of the Government. In a country the "Bush veld" with their cattle, on what not exist in France. constitutes to large numbers of these people a sort | Professor Blanchard, nevertheless, thinks the

There is one point in Miss Hobhouse's attishe not touched by the sufferings of those persons who are, and always have been, loyal subjects of the Empire, who were driven from their homes by the Boers, and who are still enduring as much as or more than the worst cases adduced by her amongst the Boor refugees? Why does she not plead their cause? One fact is, however, evident. If we deliberately postpone the interests of our loyal subjects to the interests of the Boers the latter will regard our beneficence as savouring of weak conciliation rather than of sympathy.

I would not, however, neglect conciliation when it can be practised in accord with imperial interests. There is an olive branch which I know that the Boers in the Transvaal, and I conclude those in the Orange River Colony, for children, offered under conditions which would facilitate its acceptance, would do more to render the Boers loyal to the Empire and do more to strengthen the loyalty of the already loyal English Afrikander than all else. It is but little known to those who have not dwelt for years amongst the farming population of the Transvaal that learning is the one thing a Transy al Boer reverences. I have no accurate knowledge except of the Transvaal, therefore I speak of it alone; but the South African problem is concentrated in the Transvaal. The question of adult education is one of political emergency rather than of education in the ordinary acceptation of the term. If we do not occupy the waste fields of adult ignorance and not only sow good seed therein, but guard them from the sowing of bad seed by our enemies. these will not be slow in taking advantage of our want of promptitude. "And if so little yields you such happiness, Lilian, what will it be for us both when we are free to claim each other till death parts us," ha continued passionately. "The desire to hasten matters, overrules me almost at times, and I have to keep a tight grip of myself. anything but an impostor. Poor Lilian! Her trust in the man who had won her love was so implicit that not a doubt shadowed it. The upward glance of her lovely eyes proved this wholly, and if no qualm toucked his conscience at that moment, he was even that the true Robert Jardine came home to claim his own. The news of it reached the Gable House through the medium of Lisbeth scrub out Miss Rachel's leitchen-the rest of the housework Lilian managed herself. During news that has come my way for years," she exclaimed. "That destestable fellow over at phetic words found ample fulfilment. Craigo'er is no nephew of the Misses Jardine after all but a wicked impostor. Robert Jardine's true son has come home to day, and shown up all the deception-so he has been forced to flee the place. His real name it seems is George Stapleton, and he was working on a gold claim out in California with Robert Jardine, when Robert took fever. Thinking he might not recover, Robert entrusted all the letters and papers proving his identity to this fellow for the purpose of sending them home to his aunts, and the deceiver saw his opportunity at once. Instead of waiting to nurse Robert back to health, he forsook him that very night, and mude his way over to this country. Well, I'm downright thankful his villainy has been proved in the end. What is it, girl? Why do you stare at me as if you had taken leave of your sences?" But Lilian's only answer was to fall in a swoon at her aunt's feet.

CHAPTER III.

It was as Miss Rachel had told. George Stapleton-the would be Robert Jardine-had fled the place, and whether deterred by shame, or fear of further discovery, without seeking even a brief interview with the girl whose love he had won. Miss Rachel's suspicions were aroused by the manner in which her niece had received the news of his treachery, but with the wisdom of the sorpent, she kept her own conusel in the matter.

At the first Lilian's faith in her lover received a terrible shock, and she recoiled almost from the thought of ever seeing him again, but too soon such feelings passed, and a passionate yearning for the love which had been like nectar to her thirsty soul, dominated every other thought and feeling. What did matter, she a ked herself wildly, though he was base and treacherous to others, if only he was true to her? and if he sought her, she would stand by him against the world careless of all shame, and fearless of the future. One week passed, another and yet another, and still she clung to the hope that despite his long silence he had not forgotten her-a hope which strangely enough, was finally satisfied, One morning a letter came to her from George Stapleton, containing, after many expressions of undying love, these lines-" And having done my utmost to prove how great is my love for you, can you trust me, as you said you could on that fatal day of our parting, and give up all for my sake? In six days I leave for Manchester, where I have secured a temporary post, and what I wish to propose is this -that next Tuesday evening after dark you wait for me in the old tower on the cliffs. I shall come for you, from Westerhaven, in a carriage which will wait out on the road beyond, and convey us to Anstruther. There we shall be compelled to stay for the night, but next morning we can RE now prepared to receive Goods for | catch a train for Edinburgh, and continue our Landing and Shipping of Cargoes is when it is quite dark : earlier we might be seen, darling! I wait in koon suspense for your answer-my weal or woe for the future now d. pends entirely on you." whote that same night to George Stapleton.

Lilian's answer need scarcely be told. She and posted the letter by stealth, for an uncanny feeling possessed her that her aunt was watching her movements suspiciously, though she spoke never a word. The next five days came and went all too slowly for her whose whole being throbbed with feverish anxiety lest any new tern of events should change the prospect before her. But the appointed night came at last.

Sickness and languor had so often overcome her during the past few weeks, that it was not difficult to feign both on this occasion, and retire to her own room shortly after nine. Miss Rachel, who was a poor alcoper, never went early to bed, but Lilian knew she could escape It was now the end of August, and there be-and carrying with her a small black bag. The St. Cove folks kept early hours, so that she did not encounter a single soul, but as she sped across the brass, each breath of wind that fanned her cheek, or dash of the waves on the shore beneath, filled her with vague and over increasing terror.

Reaching the lower at length, she looked about eagerly, hoping to find her lover already on the spot, but there was no sign of living thing anywhere in sight, and as she paced restlessly to and fro, peering about her in the darkness, a new dread took hold of her-the thought of Lady Margot's ghost. How strange that the memory near that his breath touched her cheek, and of Lady Margot should not have occurred to suddenly becoming conscious that his eyes dwelt her before, when thus far their fates were so similar? Ah, surely, no such terrible end awaited her, as had befallen the Lady Margot! Why did her lover not come? It must be past the appointed hour, and she felt that she could not bear the dread loneliness of the place. a moment longer. What silent figure was that moving towards her now, robed in a long trailperhaps, we will manage to cheat Miss Rachel, ing cloak-not her lever, but a woman, the as we have cheated her this morning, and take ghost of the Lady Margot! With a shrill knowing how near she already stood to "No," she answered shyly. "I would go the edge of the cliffs. Another step, and yet another, despite the warning cry of the "My darling, you can trust me then so advancing figure, and the next moment

"I have killed her? Woman! What do you mean?" he returned hoursely. "At your dastardly bidding she came here," continued Miss Ruchel, "and I, knowing your evil heart, followed her hither, to save her from you, but so great was her terror-alone in this God-forsaken spot to which you have called her -that driven to madness she has leapt over these rocks! You, and no other, are responsible for her awful end!

"Woman, you lio-it is you who have driven they are still haunted with the idea that I am her to death!" cried George Stapleton passionately, " ad before you quit this earth you shall pay the rice of her life, and my soul's weal." Miss Rachel put out her hands as if in wild protest, and George Stapleton, turning then with sudden haste, left her alone with her

George Stapleton was never again heard of in St. Core, but the tragie part he had played more utterly base than he was afterwards in the life of poor Lilian Blyth was told again proved to be. It was the afternoon of this day and again with bated breath, even after long years had rolled away. Through Miss Rachel the details of the story came out, for having watched the movements Wishart, who came in an evening at a time to of her niece with a vigilance scarcely comp reheusible she had suspected her intended flight with George Stapleton, and followed her to the the scrubbing process, Miss Rachel always kept | tower, intending to frustrate their plans at the a watchful eye on Lisbeth, and shorily after last moment. How she had succeeded is already the latter's arrival on this evening she came told, and her part in Lilian's sudden end so to her niece, her face visibly glowing with preyed upon her mind that, reason became unhinged. For a few years she lingered on in "I've just heard the most welcome bit of the Gable House, a crazy, God-forsaken old women, in whose life George Stapleton's pro-

MISS B, of L, sends us through our British Agents, Messre. T. NEWBERY & Sons, 27 and 28, Charterhouse Square, London, E. C., a strand of soft, glossy hair cut from her own head and measuring fifty-five inches in length,

It removes the cause from the Blood and Bones. As this Mixture is pleasant to the taste, and war-ranted free from mything injurious to the most deli-cate constitutions of either sex, the Proprietors solicit sufferers to give it a trial to test its value. Mr. Stephen Morgan writes: I have suffered since 1886 with a varicose alcorated leg, and have been under five dectors. I also attended two hospitals, but at one they suggested that I should have my leg off, and at the other that I should have the veins lecched und tied up. You may guess my feelings, therefore, to find myself now cured by taking 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' and applying 'Clarke's Miraculous Salve, especially as I have a family of eight childern. My log measured 18 in. round against 14in, the other, and part of my work I have done on my knees. The matter coming from my leg was as black as scot, but it has now completely healed up, and I am out of agony, athing not known to me for the past eight years. I must say I think my case a marvellous me. I commenced taking 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' in July, 1898, and the cost has been one small bottle to try the effects first, and finding the proper remedy, then ten large ones, also a few pots of the salve, and my leg not off. I have spent pounds in other remedies, but they have been no good to me. I shall be pleased to answer any questions, and afflicted brothers and sisters can see my leg for themselves.
